

Simulation of the Liesegang precipitation rings using an adaptive grid PDE method

March 23, 2008

Abstract

We consider the numerical simulation of the Liesegang phenomenon using the Cahn-Hilliard equation in 2D with polar coordinates. The presented adaptive grid procedure is able to deal computationally critical cases such as the presence of point sources and large viscosity. The numerical simulations show a good agreement with the real experiments.